PROSPECTUS

The inspiration for Staran – the Gaelic word for path – comes from countless childhood hours spent playing pirates on imaginative voyages on the stone staran my father made into the loch at our summer moorland pasture. Some degree of wind was required for the game, in order to create the illusion of travel through the rippling waves, and we became experts at reading the wind on the surface of the loch.

I wanted to capture the idea of the staran and the motion of water around and beyond it. I created textured patterns and then arranged them on the pullover from the viewpoint of standing at the end of the staran and looking down at the rippling waves, then over to the languid motion on the sheltered areas beneath the higher banks of the loch.

Staran is easier to knit than its appearance suggests. If you can cast on and knit and purl to an even tension then you are ready for this as your next project. You can knit your Staran along with the video tutorials in which I demonstrate and explain each step of the way, from knitting all the patterns through to finishing the garment. I also show you how to read your knitting as you go – doing this makes progress as easy and fun as reading the wind on the loch.

The Staran Video Class Kit includes – - online access to 1 hour and 34 mins of detailed video tutorials.

- a colour-printed patterncard with full instructions in all five sizes.
- all the Alice Starmore Hebridean 3 Ply yarn required to make Staran in your chosen size and colour.

In the step-by-step online video tutorials I demonstrate how Staran is knitted and finished. These tutorials are suitable for a knitter who has the ability to make a basic garment.

This design is available in any of my Hebridean 3 Ply colours. It is shown in Sea Ivory and Sea Anemone in this prospectus. Please look at our digital shade card for other colour options.

A close-up photograph of a green knitted fabric, likely a sweater or scarf, with two silver knitting needles and a ball of green yarn. The fabric is textured with a ribbed pattern. The needles are positioned diagonally across the fabric. The ball of yarn is on the right side of the image. The background is black.
